1980s giants back for spectacular gig at the Royal Albert Hall

November 08, 2012, 8:24 am -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- Fans of 'Don't You Want Me Baby' will be revving up for a spectacular live return for 1980s pop group The Human League. The threesome is on a massive 2012 European tour, taking in Germany, Holland, Denmark and Belgium before spending November and December in the UK.

The group travel to London on Monday 26th November for an extra special date at the Royal Albert Hall. And London hotels experts HotelMap, an ingenious widget which communicates directly with hotels to find the best deals, has started scouting some great deals for hotels near Hyde Park.

Human League fans will be very pleased to know that their accommodation can come at fantastic knock-down prices without skimping on the luxury. HotelMap communicates with its clients directly so there are no extra middle-man charges, and the widget works in seconds, allowing the individual to feed in their data and receive the deals in a matter of seconds.

For music fans who will be up at the end of November to see the 80s champions celebrate 35 years in the music business with classic hits as well as tracks from their new album Credo, finding a hotel near the gig venue is a great treat.

The Berjaya Eden Park Hotel in Bayswater, just over 15 minutes walk to the Royal Albert Hall, has a whopping discount of 93% for the Monday November 26th – double rooms are available for £73, knocking spots of the usual asking price of £799.

Or there is the 4* Copthorne Tara Hotel Kensington, coming in at £103 per night. Use the HotelMap widget to find more great deals for the Human League and make your evening a hit!
