Catch one of the UK's favourite choreographers at Sadler's Wells this Christmas

November 29, 2012, 1:05 pm -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- This Christmas one of the worlds' best-loved fairy tales meets one of contemporary ballet's favourite choreographers in the form of Matthew Bourne's Sleeping Beauty.

Playing at Sadler's Wells in Islington, from 4th December 2012 until the 26th January 2013, Bourne brings his reputation for reimagining classic works to another of ballet's best-loved works. His world-renowned all-male Swan Lake was a hit several times over, and hopes are high for this Christmas classic.

Dance fans and curious visitors looking for an extravagant Christmas treat that's an alternative to panto or musicals will no doubt be excited by the physical displays of virtuosity as well as the music and elaborate yet lyrical costumes which Bourne's productions are well-known for.

London website and leisure expert LondonTown will be facilitating the success and enjoyment of Bourne's new ballet with their excellent deals on <a href="https://doi.org/10.2016/journe.2016/april 2016/april 20

Renowned for sourcing discounts and offers straight from the hotels themselves, visitors to London should make sure to check out the website for some of the significant reductions on double rooms and serviced apartments across the capital.

Those looking to stay in the area but with enough space to explore the rest of the city should take a look at deals on The Zetter Hotel London, in Clerkenwell. There are 50% discounts off doubles at this 4* hotel in the second weekend of December (8th /9th).

Alternatively, stay in 5* luxury in the heart of the city at the highly recommended Grange St Paul's Hotel London, offering double rooms from £159 per night for two adults.
