Press Release Body = A NEW website dedicated to photography will allow photographers to showcase their portfolios to buyers across the world and network with top photographers.

www.onlinephotographers.net has been developed by 22-year-old photographer Andrew Hardman to provide photographers with an essential toolkit to promote and improve their work.

The site includes the latest photography news and events, the ability to showcase professional portfolios to a worldwide audience next to some of the world's top photographers and a social photo sharing and networking facility which allows photographers to receive comments and reviews from the site's users on their photographs.

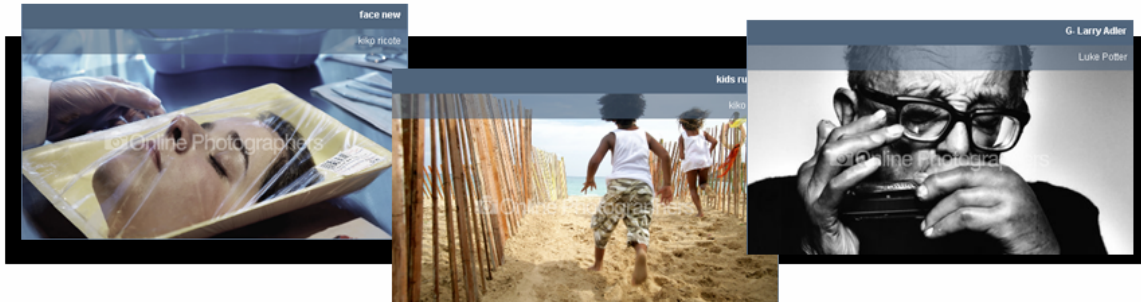

Over 100 big name photographers have already signed up to the site including Bryan and Cherry Alexander, who has been crowned BBC Wildlife Photographer of the Year, and Pulitzer Prize-winning celebrity photographer Brian Smith.

Andrew, who specialises in wildlife photography, said: "The Online Photographers website is an interactive one stop shop for photographers, photo buyers and interested users.

"It aims to be the internet's main information portal for photography and allows users to rate and review anything from photographs, portfolios, articles and news as well as adding relevant articles on industry news and photography.

"Highlights of the website include My Portfolio where photographers can showcase their portfolio in a user friendly format and sell them to a worldwide audience commission free.

"My Site allows photographers to create a customised website which is Search Engine Optimisation friendly, and members can share their pictures in the My Photo section and receive advice, comments and support from like minded photographers.

"The website ranks highly on the main search engines and is fast becoming the first stop for people with a genuine interest in photography."
