Press Release Summary: Foremost Groups Inc, a manufacturer of home furnishing products, has released a line of High-Efficiency toilets designed to conserve water amidst anticipated widespread droughts in the near future.

Press Release Body: East Hanover, NJ (Foremost Groups Inc.) March 31, 2008 – According to a recent U.S. Government Accountability Office survey, 36 states anticipate water shortages by the year 2013. Foremost Groups Inc. realizes the severity of this problem and has been focusing on producing products that aid in water conservation. In response to these expected water shortages, Foremost is producing new low-consumption and Dual Flush water-saving toilets. The company believes that creating and maintaining a healthy and strong environment should be a priority.

A standard toilet can account for 25% of water usage within the average home, and a leaky fixture can waste up to 200 gallons of water a day. By replacing a toilet that dates from before 1993 with a low-consumption or Dual Flush model, you can conserve up to 80% of the water that was being flushed away.

Foremost's new HETs (High-Efficiency Toilets) are manufactured to be a proactive tool in water conservation. The All-in-One 1000 series toilets feature Dual Flush, with a 1.1 gpf flush for liquids and another 1.6 gpf flush for solids. These Dual Flush models, along with other Foremost HET models, save water and meet EPA WaterSense standards. Visit <http://www.foremostgroups.com/resources/watersense.html> for more information.

With the purchase of a new HET toilet, you may be eligible for a monetary rebate ranging from $25 to $200. Visit http://www.foremostgroups.com/resources/national_toilet_rebate_program.html to see if your municipality supports a toilet rebate program.
