Industry: Retail

Press Release Summary: Discount code use on the rise as shoppers look for more ways to save money online.

Press Release Body: In the current economic climate – with increasing energy costs, food bills and fuel bills making sure you get the most for your money is a top priority.

Which is why both online shopping and shopping discount code use is on the rise.

Discount codes are promotional voucher codes that are released by online retailers in order to give an added discount when a customer makes a purchase at their store. These money off codes can range from a percentage discount of the total spend, free delivery or sometimes even a free gift with a purchase.

More and more retailers are now releasing discount codes in a bid to keep people spending which appears to be working, so finding a code for your favourite retailer is now becoming easier.

The discount code site <http://www.discounttart.co.uk> has up to the minute discount codes straight from the retailers as soon as they are released. Codes are sorted on the site by retailer, but can also be sorted by discount type and by retailer category. If you can't find the retailer you are looking for there is also a forum.

Discount Tart has been in operation for over 3 years now and has seen the discount code industry get busier and busier as more and more people take money saving that bit more seriously!
