Press Release Body: According to the latest rehabilitation reports, the foundation of a successful recovery from drug addiction depends on several factors. All the different elements, even the underlying ones, have to be addressed accurately, and only with an appropriate and effective drug treatment plan, can the highest level of success can be guaranteed.

Everyone knows that drug addiction is a serious, worldwide problem, which has strong genetic and environmental influences. So far, the many studies trying to reveal all of the varieties of genes, biological and environmental processes which are underlying and leading to addiction, have only been able to paint part of a total canvas.

Therefore, one can come to the conclusion that, measuring the causes of any drug addiction or the extent of its impact on a single individual, and society surrounding him is, at this time, virtually impossible.

Breaking through the barriers surrounding substance abuse is one of the many goals taken deeply to heart by one of the finest drug treatment centers in the world. Using some of the most revolutionary and innovative recovery plans ever designed, at the Cliffside Malibu Rehabilitation Center is a given. They will consider the entire breadth of drug treatment strategies and recovery options possible, carefully choosing the best plan of action to help their patients heal smoothly and comfortably. They will do anything in their power, to ensure that their elite patients will be able to re-integrate into society with confidence.

Cliffside's posh private alcohol and drug rehabilitation center is nestled deep in the California Malibu hills, far removed from the limelight of metropolitan Los Angeles. As a result, Cliffside's impressive list of privileged clientele is free to pursue their recovery programs without annoying disturbances. As those clients, who rank among the most influential people in politics, show business, or are global industrial icons, will tell you, that sort of privacy can make a world of difference during drug treatment.

The Cliffside Malibu's Drug Treatment Center is designed with only their patients' best interests in mind. After an initial assessment, a break-through treatment program, tailored to each individual patient is put together. During therapy the patient will gradually decrease his or her drug dependency, and will undergo a full detox session, if deemed necessary. It is important to understand that, ultimately, an addiction recovery is a patient-centric process. This means that, despite all efforts put forward by qualified staff, drug rehabilitation can only work, if the patient is willing to succeed.

Even at the most upscale drug treatment center, the key to winning the war against substance abuse means hard work. Nobody, who has an in-depth understanding of the fight against addiction, will tell you different. It is a difficult struggle, but one that can be won, especially if the battlefield is located in a facility, that pampers their patients with the same luxurious comforts of home, including a fitness center, spa facility, heated pool, laundry service, mouth-watering gourmet meals, meditation gardens and scenic views. Furthermore, there are exquisitely furnished rooms, and private housing which include plasma TV and Internet access.

Thousands of people enter addiction treatment centers each year, only to relapse and return to their destructive habits. This happens because the centers providing drug rehabilitation did not take care of all aspects of this disease. They were unable to supply the complete, individual treatment sessions, group therapy, or any other necessary care needed to succeed. They simply forgot that there are no shortcuts or quick fixes when it comes to drug rehabilitation.

At Cliffside Malibu, patients will receive a fully customized treatment plan that will prepare them mentally, emotionally and physically for the return to society. Even their loved ones will be educated and trained, so they understand the entire healing process and can be supportive, even if aftercare is required. In other words: Cliffside is the treatment center that gives it all!
