Just think of Virgin Holidays Cruises as a personal cruise tailor. From "slim fit" mini cruises, to "tuxedo" luxury cruising and everything in between. They sew holidays up to exact specifications, adding as many embellishments (think V ROOM, precruise and post-cruise stays and flight and cabin upgrades) as needed.

An advertisement for a Barbados cruise holiday. It features a photo of a couple sitting on beach chairs with a cruise ship in the background. The text reads: 'Barbados Stay and Cruise Holiday', 'March 2009 – December 2009', '14 Nights', '7nts All Inclusive Barbados Stay', '7nts Carnival Victory Cruise Holiday', 'Fly Upper Class From £599pp+', and 'From £1,399'. The Carnival logo is visible in the bottom left corner of the image.

Perhaps start a Caribbean cruise adventure in Barbados, spending seven-nights (or three, five, ten or fourteen...) stretching out on the beach or taking in some local culture before hopping on-board an ocean liner to explore other Caribbean gems. While away each day exploring sandy shores or partaking in a little local life before joining the ship in the evening to sail off to the next island. Arguably the best way to see the Caribbean and all it has to offer, a cruise can take you to six different islands in a week! Ooooh tempting...

Days at Sea can be spent indulging in a massage in the on-board spa, burning off calories (the food is delicious) in the fitness centre or even learning to ice skate (yes, it's amazing what can be found on-board a cruise ship!). Be dazzled by the evening entertainment, head to the casino if Vegas is more your style, or simply sip a glass of champers on the deck while you sail into the distance. Stuff of fantasies, no?

There's a huge selection of ships to choose from—Carnival, Costa, Celebrity, Royal Caribbean and Windstar—to name a few. And there's something from everyone, whether it's a small, intimate and romantic escape for two that's on the agenda, or a fun-filled, activity-abundant family adventure.
