New Social Media Site for Connecting Farms and Communities

FarmConnect.net Social Networking for Farmers

Connecting Farms And Communities

Released on: January 04, 2010, 3:46 am Author: Mike Murphhy / FarmConnect.net

Industry: Agriculture

A new social media site specifically set up for connecting farms and communities was launched a few days ago.

http://www.FarmConnect.net allows farms and those interested in telling agriculture's important stories to get their own blog, create groups and discussion forums that are either public, private(by invitation only), or hidden (only viewable to invited members).

Farms who might have been daunted by getting their own website can easily set up a group with their farm name and easily keep in touch with friends, family, and their community.

If you are passionate about any aspect of agriculture, create your own discussion group on FarmConnect.net today and start sharing your passion.
