With the World Cup nearly here, England fans in Tenerife don't need to miss out on all the action and atmosphere thanks to a new guide just launched by popular travel portal myTenerifeinfo.com

The new guide, 'Where to watch the World Cup in Tenerife', which has just been launched by popular travel portal myTenerifeinfo.com, has been created to ensure holidaymakers flying in to Tenerife over the World Cup period won't have to worry about missing any of the important matches or the camaraderie of cheering on the three lions in the pub with a bunch of fellow Brits.

In the guide to the bars and nightclubs across Tenerife who will be showing the World Cup, it not only displays the number of screens available but also any special drinks and food promotions like half-time barbecues or free snacks during the England games.

The new guide highlights where the best bars are to watch the World Cup, FIFA 2010, along with information about where to find special food and drinks promotions. Combined with the current availability of cheap flights to Tenerife, inexpensive Tenerife holiday apartments and the already low prices across the island like $\in 1$ a pint and $\in 6$ for an all-you-can-eat-buffet, myTenerifeinfo feels that it could even work out cheaper for some fans to holiday in Tenerife than staying at home and watching the World Cup in a pub in Britain. myTenerifeinfo is hoping that by highlighting to potential holiday makers that they do not have to miss out on any of the World Cup action, they may be able to tempt a few additional travellers to the region.

Although it might not be the same as cheering on Rooney live in Cape Town, Rustenburg and Port Elizabeth, myTenerifeinfo points out that watching the World Cup instead with the bonus of the sunny Tenerife weather offers many benefits compared to stepping out from a packed pub in the UK into the oppressive grey of another British summer of discontent.
