Comedy Christmas alternative for atheists is back for fifth successive year at the Bloomsbury Theatre.

December 12, 2012, 1:06 pm -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- The Bloomsbury Theatre will host five evenings of secularist comedy and music this December. 'Nine Lessons and Carols for Godless People' will run from Dec 16-20, and will continue its tradition of inviting scientists to speak in between the entertainment. The show contains an easy mix of satire, science and singing, all in the name of rationalism. Concert-goers should expect a few sideswipes at religion along the way.

Founded and curated by comic Robin Ince, previous year's line-ups have included a 20-piece orchestra, choirs, sets by comedians from Phill Jupitus to Ricky Gervais, and guest appearances from populist scientists like Simon Singh and Richard Dawkins.

This year's line-up is no less impressive. Stewart Lee, Chris Addison, Richard Herring and Josie Long are all performing, as are steampunk band The Men That Will Not Be Blamed For Nothing. Tickets cost between £25 and £15, and are selling fast, so the advice is to book early to avoid disappointment.

Cheap London hotels are not easy to come by in this part of the capital, but website LondonTown.com has announced a number of deals on hotels close to the Bloomsbury Theatre. Among the discounts on offer, the Hilton London Euston Hotel (less than five minutes walk from the theatre) is offering deluxe double rooms at a 67% discount, making the cost of a night's stay £113.

Just as close is the Radisson Blu Edwardian Grafton Hotel. Its 330 rooms make it one of the biggest hotels in West London. When booking through LondonTown.com, guests are offered a 57% discount on double rooms. The reduction brings the cost of a stay down to £125 per night.

Both deals featured are available exclusively through LondonTown.com. Visit the site to find more cheap London hotels, and for further information on this year's Nine Lessons and Carols for Godless People.
