Texas based House of File today announces the release of Teacher's Pet for the iPad and iPad Mini. A wildly practical teaching solution for modern elementary & secondary teachers, as well as college professors, this application offers teachers a centralized academic hub where they can plan, prepare, and present their lessons from one app on their iPad!

Dickinson, Texas, December 03, 2012, 7:31 am -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- House of File, a mobile developer focused on a wide variety of applications, is excited today to announce the launch of Teacher's Pet on the App Store. Created specifically for iPad and iPad Mini and is the ONLY App that Teachers need to make their iPad the ULTIMATE Teaching Assistant.

First, you can create your lesson plans by date, grade, or subject, and save it to your calendar, or email the lesson plan to your colleagues or supervisor. Then, to prepare your lesson, this app will allow you to prepare notes, use an interactive whiteboard that you can preload with a picture or graphic, import PDFs or PPT presentations, upload videos, pictures, or record lectures and create flash cards, and then save your lessons to your calendar by date and subject. You can create lessons for as many subjects as you need each day. Finally, after your lessons are saved to your calendar, you can easily retrieve them for presentation. The app lets you present any of your material through your overhead with a VGA connector, or wirelessly through an Apple TV. Your lessons can be emailed or shared over Bluetooth, or you can use the print function to prepare handouts for students.

A well rounded app, Teacher's Pet features password protection options, as well as full iCloud backup support to ensure that your lessons and other data will never be lost. Setting up the app is as simple as inputting your name, school year, and classes that you teach. You're free to set up appointments, reminders and other alerts within the calendar as well.

Teacher's Pet is currently available for download on the App Store for $4.99 in the Education category.
