Berkshire, UK, December 21, 2012, 7:47 am -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- If there is one thing that most families do during the festive period it's eat! The turkey for Christmas dinner and then eating the leftovers during the next few days is going to be the plan of action for many families over the next week.

If you want to do something creative with the leftover turkey then the Great Gift Company, a leading supplier of gifts for men, has got some brilliant cookery presents that would be perfect for this time of year.

Products such as "Jamie's Great Britain" and "Life Is Too Short to Drink Bad Wine" are two great books worth buying during the festive period. Jamie Oliver is renowned for his cooking skills and some of his tips and tricks are in this great book whilst you will find 100 wines you have to try in the book written by Simon Hoggart.

Mette Downer, Managing Director of the company, commented;

"We know that there are always plenty of leftovers during the festive period and a nice glass of wine also goes down beautifully with a turkey sandwich at night. That is why we have added these books to our growing selection of presents."

Food and drink gifts account for many of the activities that we do over the festive period so if when planning on what to do with leftovers then there are plenty of options available to all customers. Food and drink gifts have also made up a sizeable percentage of Christmas gifts this year as the recipient is sure to get their money's worth.

The Great Gift Company have made sure they are fully stocked for the Christmas rush so if any customers out there haven't yet finished their shopping there is still time to get that all important gift.
