All are extremely cost effective, and worth the price when it comes to improving the look of your door furnishings, and ensuring they last as long as possible.

Highlights of the range include a brass restorer for tarnished brass, available for just a few pounds, just brush on or dip small items.

After a few minutes the tarnished brass can be rubbed down with superfine grade 0000 wire wool then polished with Brasso, and if required, recoated in lacquer to keep the shine. The quality, quick drying metal lacquer does not yellow as it ages, and can be brushed or sprayed on brass door furniture. Cellulose thinners can be used to clean the lacquer brushes after use. Brass restorer can also be used to clean un-lacquered copper and bronze on the exterior of the home.

Remember to never use Brasso, wire wool, metal restorers or any chemical products on lacquered metals or the lacquer coating will get damaged.

Unlacquered brass around the home, or brass door furniture which has had the lacquer removed, can however be maintained using Brasso Cleaner or Brass Restorer; removing tarnish from exterior brass furniture and restoring their original colour.
