Fuerzabruta returns to the Roundhouse for 2013, reports LondonTown.com

June 10, 2013, 1:24 pm -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- Following a multimillion pound refurbishment in 2006, the Roundhouse was reopened in spectacular fashion with Fuerzabruta. Dazzling audiences with its originality and remarkable visual effects, the show enjoyed an extended run and then returned for a limited time in late 2012. Now, the production comes back to London for an extended period in December 2013.

Public booking for tickets to Fuerzabruta opens on Tuesday 11th June at 9am and the Roundhouse has introduced a new pricing structure for this year. Startling a little cheaper than last year at £32.50, tickets at this price will be available to the earliest bookers and prices will change with time. Having sold out in a flash in 2012, early booking is recommended to avoid disappointment. For anyone travelling from outside of London, a wide selection of London hotels can be booked through LondonTown.com.

With its title meaning brute force, Fuerzabruta is an all-standing theatrical experience that has pushed its way to the top to become the fastest selling show in the Roundhouse's history. Its iconic images of a man bursting full throttle through a series of walls and a scene of a watery world suspended just inches above the audience are a hint to the extraordinary sequences that can be expected throughout. An all-standing show, it engulfs the audience and all their senses with the use of visual effects, acrobatic stunts, strobe lighting and lashings of water.
