Annual event returns to King's Cross for sixth year

September 05, 2013, 2:38 pm -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- Describing itself as a 'hub for music, art, dialogue and food' and a 'leading cultural landmark', the Kings Place Festival is back for a sixth successive year. Housed in an award-winning building in the heart of King's Cross, the festival begins on September 13th, running until September 15th.

Over a hundred events and concerts will be packed into three days, making this year's festival the biggest yet. Highlights include Alice in Wonderland by Box Tale Soup, the critically-acclaimed Pappy's troupe, and The Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment. Vocal group Vive offer up their singular vision of a capella music, drawing on their members' experience at the Guildhall School of Music.

The festival is one of the most eclectic around, with classical, contemporary and experimental performers sitting alongside jazz, folk and blues musicians. Events have to be booked separately, but the Kings Place Festival is offering a click 'n' mix discount to people booking more than three shows.

Prices vary, and more information can be found at the festival's website or at LondonTown.com. The latter is also offering discounted hotels in London – all within easy reach of Kings Place - for the duration of the festival.
