

Sail out on a musical journey with London Jazz Festival

Released on: November 29, 2013, 12:18 pm
Author: Premier Club Rewards London Hotels
Industry: Travel

LONDON, November 29, 2013, 12:18 pm -- /EPR NETWORK/ --
London, the historic city known for its rich culture promises a very entertaining or to be precise a very 'musical' vacation this November. Visitors who love to relax their soul with soft jazz music can have a great time at the UK capital from November 15 to 24 since the London Jazz Festival is scheduled to be held at that time. It's a great opportunity for jazz lovers to watch and hear some of the greatest performances live at the top entertainment venues in the city. Biggest stars on the sky of jazz music would take on the stages to take the audience on a romantic musical journey, with their talent, skills and expertise.

This is going to be the 21st edition of the London Jazz Festival, which rocks the British capital every year with musical nights being ornamented by top jazz stars of the world. Jazz lovers can expect this edition of the festival to be one of the best of all times, since the list of performers is looking great. It's a lifetime opportunity for all music lovers and travellers who would be in the city at that time. They would surely consider themselves lucky to be a part of this great musical event. The city is already shivering in festive fever since the festival is just days away and the venues are getting ready to provide the audience with supreme level of entertainment. Fans and enthusiasts of jazz lovers would be excited to know the names of stars, who would shine at the festival venues. The list includes eminent American pianist Brad Mehldau and popular US jazz drummer Mark Guiliana. To create a stunning combination, both these masters have been paired and the magic would happen at the Barbican on November 21. The Stunning performance would be followed by famous four-piece band Sons of Komet. This time, the band would be led by Shabaka Hutchings and the performers would get additional drum support from Tom Skinner and Seb Rochford. Oren Marshal will add to the flavour of music with his blows to the tuba.

At the new sensation 606 Club in Chelsea, jazz lovers would get a great opportunity to see Reuben James, one of the top rising jazz stars of the day perform at the stage. The event is scheduled for November 19. Music lovers are sure to experience a great fusion made of jazz, classical music, hip hop and jospel there. The rising star, a pianist for the late Abraham Wilson has earned reputation for his talent quite and is expected to shine more in the coming days. Performances of the London Jazz Festival would take place at multiple venues across London and to ensure a timely entry to show, visitors should book rooms at hotels that offer easy accesses to these places. Shaftesbury Hyde Park International would be a great option for people who want to experience the London Jazz Festival, sine it is strategically located close to the Paddington underground train station from where trains to all major points in London are available.

About Shaftesbury Hyde Park International

Situated at Inverness Terrace, Westminster, Shaftesbury Hyde Park International is a gorgeous four star hotels. It's a contemporary hotel where guests can enjoy a host of modern amenities along with ultimate comfort, luxury and convenience. At present, guests having membership of the hotel's Premier Club can enjoy added privileges in the forms of awards like complimentary breakfast, free broadband internet access, Stay 2 night get 10 % and Advance Purchase Offer.

~~~~~

Press release distributed via EPR Network (<http://express-press-release.net/submit-press-release.php>)