On March 20, 2014, the Southern California, alternative teen rock band, "Broken" announced its final lineup of gifted musicians. The band is fronted by powerhouse, lead vocalist and former American Idol standout, Dani Morelos.

Rounding out the lineup are talented musicians and founding members Christian Demman on bass guitar and vocals, Ryan Ramirez on Drums and vocals. Most recently, Justin Covarubbias on rhythm guitar and vocals, and Michael Hill on Lead Guitar and vocals have joined the group. Each of these guitarists bring a particular flavor and style to the band will add to versatility in the songs the band will perform. They have begun rehearsing diligently on both well known covers and original material.

Dani Morelos commented, "We really took our time auditioning many guitarists for the band, but it was worth the wait. When it is right, you just know it, and we can't wait to take the stage and put on a great show."

While the band has many influences, including Paramore, Evanescence, and Flyleaf just to name a few, they have really started to develop their own sound and are working on several hard, hitting originals.

Members of the band have headlined The House of Blues Disney recently and have experience playing many other large venues, festivals and events.

This Huntington Beach, California based band is ready to take the stage by storm and is booking shows through the summer now.
