Press Release Summary: Real estate expert Kenn Renner is hosting a series of timely real estate seminars and webinars free of charge designed to inform homeowners and homebuyers on how to thrive in today's real estate and mortgage markets.

Press Release Body: September 18, 2008, Austin, TX -- Real estate expert Kenn Renner rolls out timely seminars and webinars for homeowners and homebuyers in Austin, Texas. The educational series will cover an array of timely subjects with an emphasis on real estate. Topics include: investment, HUD foreclosures, debt cancellation, credit repair, college and retirement housing, goal setting and time management as well as property tax and income tax strategies. The seminars and webinars will be free of charge and will be held at various locations around Austin and Central Texas including colleges, universities and financial centers, including Amplify Credit Union (formerly IBM Credit Union).

One of Kenn's timely presentations will include an in-depth study of the new legislation benefiting thousands of home seekers - "The Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008" and will focus on the IRS's $7,500 first time homebuyer tax credit. This credit will allow first time homebuyers (those who have not owned a home in the past three years) to receive a $7,500 tax "credit" akin to a tax refund. Home buyers that qualify must purchase and close on a new or resale home by July 1, 2009.
