Manchester, April 2010: Don't let the beautiful tree-lined suburban avenues fool you. There might be a striking water feature in the middle of an idyllic inner courtyard, but Luther King House, located at a convenient distance from the city, is your one-stop shop for all residential conference and training needs.

It's a peaceful retreat, complete with large conference rooms or smaller meeting rooms as per your requirements. Delegates are free to use the superior audio-visual equipment, including flip charts and pens, whiteboards, OHPs, televisions, video players, DVD players, wall-mounted display systems and digital data projectors. In addition to this, Luther King House also offers morning and afternoon teas as well as breakfasts and lunches, at highly competitive rates.

A sharp presentation, a good night's sleep, and the idea that will take your company from local to multinational — surely these are the key ingredients for the perfect pitch? No need to worry about the facilities themselves - you can let Luther King House supply the coffee and tea-breaks, delicious hot and cold spreads for lunch... and concentrate on your pitch.

This Manchester B&B is a no-fuss environment where all your details are taken care of, so you can concentrate on the more important details of your presentation. Its landscaped grounds, inner courtyard and water feature also provide a welcome relief for delegates during the day or evening.

The conference rooms can accommodate up to 100 delegates and can be reconfigured into many different layouts — boardroom, theatre, classroom or a more informal setting. Rates vary, depending on day or specific residential programmes, but are within extremely competitive ranges. And why should Luther King House's meeting rooms Manchester be your only destination for offsite meetings and training sessions? Purely because they offers the most basic facilities and more under one roof with minimum fuss and maximum integrity.

This conference and accommodation centre is well equipped and will offer you the best package depending on your requirements. There is free parking and the food for residential delegates includes a three course dinner, accommodation in a single en-suite room, a full continental buffet style breakfast and a two course lunch with a choice of hot and cold buffet dishes. For smaller sized sessions, there are meeting rooms that can also be hired on a per session basis.
