Excess International Movers (EIM) is one of the UK's largest shippers of household goods, international removals and baggage to major migrant destinations such as Australia, New Zealand, Canada, USA and South Africa. Since its formation in 1983 by Edinburgh University Graduate, David Elliott, the business has seen massive growth.

The company now handles over 1500 international removals containers of household goods, personal effects and furniture annually. Together with some 500 tonnes of personal and household effects, international removals and baggage shipped by air, on major carriers such as British Airways, Emirates, Cathay Pacific and Qantas serving many different countries such as shipping to Australia, New Zealand, Canada, USA and many more.

The level of service offered by EIM is both detailed and bespoke to your particular needs, EIM have noticed that when making the decision to emigrate a key concern has always been what to do with all our possessions. In the past we may have had to compromise what we take, selling or giving away the rest, with Excess International Movers though migrants to many popular destinations can relax and have the stress of moving taken off their shoulders.

Excess International's David Elliott said "The increase in people emigrating to foreign countries such as Australia, Canada or anywhere else in the world could be down to a number of different reasons:

Retirement abroad, moving for a new job, joining family among other reasons..."

"...At Excess International Movers we want to take the stress and confusion out of emigrating, which should be a happy and exciting time. By using our baggage shipping and international removals services we hope that many more families can make the moving process hassle-free and enjoyable thanks to us doing the hard work for them"

Excess International Movers has forged excellent relationships with international removals companies all over the world and utilises only the best and highest quality organisations to ensure the safe delivery of your possessions to your new home. By using either air freight for quick deliveries or sea freight to transport larger items more quickly and being much more cost effective.

At the beginning of any international move EIM conduct a pre-international move survey on a no obligation basis at your home by a trained international moving advisor. By doing this EIM are able to get quick and accurate costing of every potential move. Once agreed a moving date can be set and when moving day rolls around all of the possessions to be transported will be loaded onto secure shipping containers.
