DirectRooms.com can announce that the highly anticipated hotel Maldives the Six Senses Laamu will be opening its doors to guests this April for the first time.

The Six Senses Laamu is an exotic hotel located in a remote but pristine location in the Maldives. The hotel itself has been constructed using sustainable materials in its designs and architecture, creating a tranquil and inviting retreat for all those looking to enjoy this beautiful location.

The opening will take place on 2 April 2011, with special events at the bar and guests staying in the hotel for the very first time.

This is the only resort on the virtually uncharted Laamu Atoll. The resort sits on the island of Olhuveli, deep in the heart of the Indian Ocean. The resort has chosen to stay true to their desire to protect the environment by using all local, sustainable materials in the creation of this resort.

There are 97 villas set amongst the lush beaches and the tropical waters of the island. The resort is located near a beautiful blue lagoon that allows for many activities. Surfing on the reef, board and kite lessons, diving, skiing and snorkelling are all offered. Boats trips are offered daily to bring guests to a myriad of events around the island.

The Chill Bar is a perfect place to party and socialise in the evenings at the resort.

A yoga pavilion, gym and children's play den round out the amenities offered at this fabulous resort, one of many hotels in the Maldives.
