(Modesto, Calif.) November 2011- Titanium-Jewelry.com, a premier online retailer of men's jewelry, mens wedding bands, titanium rings, and tungsten jewelry, today announced the addition of more than two dozen new cobalt rings from Heavy Stone and Benchmark. Internationally known as the top choices in hot contemporary metals market, the two companies offer spectacular wedding bands featuring one of the hottest, and most versatile, new metals on the market.

"There is a new player in town when it comes to choices for guys wedding bands," said Ron Yates, founder of Titanium-Jewelry.com. "It used to be that if a guy was in the market for a wedding band he would go the gold or platinum route because, well, that was traditionally what you would get. Now, though, since the price of both metals have skyrocketed in recent years, those looking for mens wedding bands are more and more turning to the "non-traditional" route with alternative metals such as tungsten, titanium and, most recently, cobalt. Cobalt has made quite an impact on the men's wedding band market in the past year, as more and more grooms to be are turning to this new metal choice for their wedding bands. Titanium-Jewelry.com is proud to now offer more than two dozen cobalt wedding bands from two of the top names in the industry:

Benchmark and Heavy Stone Rings. These wedding bands will give our customers even more top-notch choices when they are looking for the perfect wedding band for their special day.”

One of the most popular contemporary metals on the market, cobalt has become a favorite of those looking for a one-of-a-kind wedding band. Whiter than platinum, cobalt is also scratch-resistant, shatter proof, and matches well when mixed with rose gold, chrome, or set with diamonds. Titanium-Jewelry is proud to offer the newest styles from Benchmark and Heavy Stone Rings, with new pieces being released each month.
