April 30, 2012, 2:39 pm -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- Thousands of DIY enthusiasts are expected to descend on London this month to take in the sights of Grand Designs Live 2012 - based on the long-running Channel 4 TV series presented by renowned design guru Kevin McCloud - and Econoloft will have its own experts close at hand to offer useful hints and tips to anyone looking for helpful advice with their own design plans.

The event, which will take place at the capital's Excel London exhibition centre for the eighth successive year, brings together a wide range of experts and ideas to promote design and innovation in all areas of the home. From interiors to gardens to home improvements, there'll be more than 500 exhibitors at Grand Designs Live 2012 - and experts from Econoloft, Britain's leading loft conversion experts, will be on hand to share some of their wealth of knowledge.

"With thousands of people expected to hit London for Grand Designs 2012, this gives us a great opportunity to pass on some of our experience to anyone mulling the idea of a loft conversion," said Rebecca Livesey from Econoloft. "Whether you're looking to boost the value of your home or you just need a bit more space, a loft conversion could be the perfect idea - and our team are more than happy to share their expertise with anyone who wants to find out more."

Running from May 5th to 13th, Grand Designs Live 2012 brings together hundreds of designers, architects and engineers all under the one roof. Around 100,000 visitors are expected to attend the event over its nine-day duration, and Kevin McCloud himself will be in attendance to regale visitors of his own Grand Designs experiences. Econoloft's team will be stationed at stand number 345, so be sure to drop by to find out more about how loft conversions can transform your home.
