LondonTown.com has discounted a variety of hotels in London this summer in time for Foodies Festival at Battersea Park

July 19, 2012, 12:05 am -- /EPR NETWORK/ -- London continues to etch out a reputation as a global foodie capital thanks to its concentration of Michelin-star restaurants and food-focused events. Foodies Festival is yet further proof of London's continued success and popularity among food lovers. Foodies Festival, held in Battersea Park from 17 to 19 August, is dedicated to all things foodie in the capital.

Visitors can expect Michelin-star chefs to demonstrate the tricks of their trade, the capital's best restaurants to offer samples of their most delectable signature dishes and champagne should be flowing freely courtesy of Veuve Clicquot.

This open-air event is expected to attract 25,000 like-minded individuals that are crazy about food. After serving up a treat in London, Foodies Festival moves to Bristol, Oxford and Edinburgh.

Day tickets for Foodies Festival cost £15 for adults and £10 for concessions. Great value three-day tickets are also available and cost £25 for adults and £18 for concessions. More information about the event can be found on LondonTown.com.
