Culture: Kenya's greatest asset, aside from animals, is its people, consisting of over 42 tribes. The Maasai are the most well-known and still practice their traditional way of life, wearing the red robes and beaded jewellery for which they are famous. Not as war-like as they once were, they still raise cattle and live by the land. Tribal life isn't the only influence on Kenyan Society- colonial history is still evident and at the coast in particular culture is predominant.

Activities: on Land, on the water and in the air, Kenya has enough activities to keep the most experienced adrenaline junkie happy and some will demand more energy than others. The Marathons, Mountain trekking, golfing, hot air balloon and Carmel derby trekking.

Beaches Served by daily flights into Mombasa, Malindi and Diani Kenya's Indian Ocean coastline offers affordable introduction to Africa, perhaps the first timers who aren't sure on what to expect from Kenya. The hotels from budget three stars to more exclusive five stars and private villas are largely all inclusive and serve all mixed nationalities. Safaris are the most popular excursion from day trips to the enormous large national parks
